

HOW DEVELOPMENTAL SCIENCE CAN HELP

ADDRESS ANTI-BLACK RACISM DURING ADOLESCENCE

INDIVIDUAL

INSTITUTIONAL

Helps build a healthy personal and ethnic-racial identity.

Support policies that address the unique challenges faced by Black families.

Ensure that Black youth have opportunities to explore and take healthy risks.

Increase awareness of racial and economic disparities by providing culturally sensitive curricula/training and equitable school funding.

Promote adolescents' existing resilience.

Establish policies, programs, and training that counteract indirect and overt threats to health and well-being.

Provide ample pathways for leadership, contribution, and relationship-building.